7/5/85

Dear Stephen Rosenfeld,

It is not that hope strings eternal - it is that I have promises to keep and alas fewer miles to go before I sleep.

So, although I have no reason to expect any news or editorial interest at the Post, I think I meet my obligation by going to the trouble and expense of informing you.

If by any chance you read what I sent you earlier, this is different in focus, form, content and in that I have, in effect, put my head on the block to persist in pursuing principle, protecting FOIA (or the right of the people to know what their government does) and fighting overt official and judicial corruption.

Sincerely,

Harold Weisberg